Virtual Reality Therapy

Terry has always been afraid of airplanes: Even seeing an airplane take off from an airport once made Terry [①] with fear. He has gone to many psychologists over the years, but nothing seemed to help until he met Dr. Lee. Dr. Lee specializes in a new form of therapy that uses computers.

This type of therapy uses a computerized virtual world to treat patients. It requires a patient to wear a special helmet that covers his or her head and face. Inside the helmet is a computer screen [②] the patient's eyes. The screen can be programmed to show any scene. Someone who is afraid of flying can be shown a realistic view of the inside of an airplane. Someone afraid of high places can be shown a scene from the roof of a tall building. Amazingly, the scene can even move, making ③ it seem like real life. When a patient moves his or her head, the view changes. When Terry turns his head to the right, he looks out the window of the plane. When he turns to the left, he sees other passengers.

There are two main [④] to virtual reality therapy. The first is the cost. It is much [⑤] to show someone a scene of the inside of an airplane than to buy a real plane ticket. Secondly, the patient can fight his or her fear in a safe environment. For example, someone afraid of high places doesn't need to face the fearful situation of standing on top of a high building. Rather, the patient can overcome such a fear in a doctor's office by experiencing and talking about her feelings. By learning to manage their anxiety in a safe, computerized world, patients can overcome life-long fears.

II 次の会話文を読んで、空所⑪～⑳を埋めるのに最も適当なものを、それぞれ与えられた1～4より一つずつ選びなさい。

Mary and Kenta are talking in their classroom.

Mary: Have you ever heard of “daylight-saving time,” Kenta?

Kenta: No, I’ve never heard of it. (⑪)?

Mary: It’s also called “summer time.”

Kenta: Oh, I’ve heard of that.

Mary: Summer time starts on the second Sunday in March in most of the U.S. We have to turn our clocks forward one hour.

Kenta: I see.

Mary: And at the end of summer time, we have to turn the clocks (⑫) one hour. It’s usually on the first Sunday in November.

Kenta: I didn’t know that. (⑬) summer time?

Mary: Well, we can make use of natural daylight to save electricity.

Kenta: Oh, (⑭).

Mary: So I think it’s a really good system for saving energy.

Kenta: I get you, but if we adopt that system, we must adjust all our clocks, right?

Mary: Right.

Kenta: (⑮)?

Mary: Well, it can be a little annoying to change all the clocks.

Kenta: And I’m not sure this system would necessarily work.

Mary: (⑯)?

Kenta: If people start working and leave the office earlier in summer, companies might use (⑰) electricity. But people might use much more electricity (⑱), and so it’s a waste, too.

Mary: (⑲). In total, no electric power is saved at all.

Kenta: That’s right. (⑳) we should save electricity, but I think we should find better ways of saving it.

Mary: You can say that again!
